

What to do...

1. What is your very favourite book?
2. Write down its title.
3. Is it a fiction (story) book or a non-fiction (information) book?
4. Tell your helper why you like it so much.
5. Either you or your helper can write down in a sentence why you like it.
6. Do you have more than one favourite book?
7. You can talk and write about other books too if you want!

Favourite book

Getting children interested in and sharing books is an essential part of learning to read. It's not just about learning sounds. Children have to want to read to learn to read! Conversations about books (just like conversations about TV programmes or computer games) help to keep children interested in books and reading (throughout their lives!).
