

Harry hopping, Bella bouncing

Thinking of words with the same sound helps children not only with writing poetry and descriptive writing, but also with their spelling. Sounding out words is an essential part of becoming an independent writer.

© Hamilton Trust, 2008. Y1.

What to do...

1. Write your name.
2. Think of the sound that your name begins with.
3. Make this sound several times.
4. Think of an action that begins with the same sound.
5. Write your name with its action word.
6. Write the name of another person in your family and an action to go with it that begins with the same sound.

Lucy leaping

Maurice munching

Sarah slipping